

Statement Regarding the Coronavirus

The Weber County Culture, Parks, and Recreation department has always been, and continues to be, committed to hosting world-class, safe events for the benefit of Weber County residents, visitors, and our many vendors. Our staff participate year-round in trainings to execute best practices for the safety and security of our event attendees and vendors at all of our indoor and outdoor properties.

The goal in any moment of public health concern is to be guided by expert information, grounded in scientific and medical data, and sourced from public health and government authorities as we avoid an over-correction to developing situations. Currently, the Utah Department of Health and multiple federal agencies have stated, "the risk to the general public is low."

Our organization, along with others around the United States, will continue to host meetings and events. We support the decision to safely do so for the continuity of business for millions of American workers.

The decision to cancel meetings and events creates significant impact on the livelihood of our vendors and the people of Weber County. We will continue to diligently monitor the situation and are prepared to follow the direction of the Weber County Health Department should different recommendations be made. At this moment, we are confident in our ability to host safe, world class events. Please see the detailed action plan below as we monitor the situation, work to prevent illness, and have ready an on-site response should the unlikely situation of an onsite contamination occur.

Our Monitoring Process

We are subscribed to and monitoring information from the following agencies to ensure an adequate and timely response from our department and venues.

Prevention

The infographic below identifies the recommended prevention methods from the Weber-Morgan Health Department and the Centers for Disease Control.

Reduce Your Risk of Coronavirus

Clean
your hands with soap and water or alcohol-based hand rub.

Avoid
close contact with anyone who is experience flu-like symptoms.

Cover
your nose and mouth when coughing or sneezing. Use a tissue or a flexed elbow.

If you develop a cough, fever, or difficulty breathing and have traveled recently with a widespread outbreak of COVID-19, you should consult the CDC's guidance for travelers, which is regularly updated as the situation changes.
